Understanding Why the 2020 Deerfield Fair is Cancelled

President Don Wyman (Right) and Vice President Dick Pitman (Left) addressed Deerfield Fair Association member questions and concerns regarding the cancellation of the 2020 Deerfield Fair at a meeting on Tuesday, June 23rd.

On June 24th, the Deerfield Fair Association Inc., announced that the 2020 Deerfield Fair would officially be cancelled. The decision was made by the Board of Directors and Members of the Association on the evening of June 23rd. There were 110 members present to vote, with 105 votes opposing the opening and five votes in favor.

The Deerfield Fair was one of the last fairs in the state to make their final decision. The Board and Members wanted to allow as much time as possible to pass in hopes that the COVID-19 pandemic would improve enough to have the Fair. Planning for the Fair takes place for almost the entire year before opening the gates by the Fair and those who participate in it, such as vendors, exhibitors, and amusement ride workers.

Fair Vice President, Richard Pitman, explained in an interview that “the health and wellbeing of everyone involved was our number one reason to cancel the Fair.”

Health was a big part of the conversation with Pitman. He highlighted the seniority of many of the Fair’s superintendents and staff. “The biggest thing is that myself included, would not be able to go to the Fair because of the risk of a health issue. 95% of the superintendents felt the same way. We are all getting older and have sheltered in place for three or four months to be safe.” Many of the superintendents would not have been able to attend the Fair and perform their responsibilities because of their age and heightened risk of contracting the virus.

In addition to health, the overall quality of a fair in the time of COVID-19 was brought into question. Pitman explained that there are many integral parts to making the Fair the annual celebration that it is. “With the reputation that the Deerfield Fair as an agricultural family Fair, it wouldn’t be possible to provide the usual experience. 4-H, FFA, the petting zoo, and other exhibitors would be unable to attend.”

In recent months organizations who typically participate in the Fair such as 4-H and FFA have cancelled their events for the foreseeable future. These were choices made by each organization at the state level and was independent of the Fair entirely. Both youth organizations were concerned about the safety and wellbeing of their Members. They chose to cancel competitions where in-person interactions with groups take place. This eliminates a large portion of agricultural events that spectators would typically enjoy watching, including the 4-H livestock, dairy and equine shows, FFA woodsman competition, and floral design displays.

Food vendors and amusement rides all follow a circuit throughout the fair season. Many of them travel directly from one fair to the next for the majority of the summer. This year, vendors will not be able to follow the typical circuit as fairs all across New England have cancelled. "A number of vendors even said that they could not afford to fire up their equipment for just one fair," stated Pitman. Also, amusement rides cost a lot of money to operate, and this cost would not be covered by just attending one fair. This means that amusement rides and most food vendors would not have been at the Fair this year either.

Everyone loves to see animals at the Fair each year, and exhibitors enjoy competing with their prized animals. Unfortunately, the livestock and dairy industry is struggling with repercussions from the pandemic. Dairy farmers across the state and country are trying to make ends meet while milk prices drop, and taxes roll in on the milk they were forced to dump in the spring. Pitman explained that "dairy farmers are especially hurting right now, and they are not looking for any extra expense. They are worried about paying their taxes, not going to a fair." Although exhibitors were saddened that they will not be able to attend the Fair this year, many are using this year to save money or continue to keep their heads above water. In addition, there is a lot of time and money that goes into exhibiting animals at fairs, which may not be worth it for a single fair. "It is the expense of it all. You either do a whole circuit or don't do it at all," explained Pitman.

Security for the Fair was also a concern, according to Pitman. "A lot of the security that we have at the Fair is trying to keep their jobs and stay safe during the week. The Fair is supposed to be enjoyable, and they were not looking forward to it at all because of the potential health risk. We cannot have a Fair without security."

In addition to lacking the usual entertainment of the Fair, patrons would be required to wear masks, maintain six-foot distancing, and likely not be able to pay for anything in cash. "If there is no handling of cash, we would not have been able to open, period, case closed," explained Pitman. There was also talk of limiting the number of patrons per day and temperature checking for staff and guests. Pitman felt that "between the cash, the masks, and the six-foot distancing, it would have been impossible."

All of these factors played a significant role in the decision to cancel this year's Fair. It was not an easy decision or one that anyone ever thought they would have to make. However, a fair without superintendents, 4-H, FFA, most exhibitors, amusement rides, food, and security, would not be possible. Especially in a safe way that would guarantee the health of the community.

Pitman said that this experience has shown him "how popular, respected, and well attended the Fair is." He has been handling most of the media coverage of the cancellation and has found that most people are supportive of the Fair's decision and understand that the health of everyone involved is of the utmost importance.

The Deerfield Fair is scheduled to open its gates for its 144th Fair in 2021 on September 30th through October 3rd. Planning is already underway to make 2021 one of the best years to date, and everyone is looking forward to it. When asked about next year, Pitman felt that "everyone will be ready after missing a whole year of the Fair, and so will we!"
